World War II Memoir Book*

The Class of 1942, through the vision and leadership of Class President Leo Caproni '42 and his wife Joanna, are recognized for creating the book of 1942 classmate memoirs, Dartmouth at War.

This is a class project that ticks all of the boxes:

- One hundred and seven classmates, widows and family members making meaningful contributions to the project via their written memories of the war
- Classmates around the world able to participate from their own homes and at no cost
- It is a lasting contribution to the Dartmouth community as the stories captured within the book's pages reflect a special time in the history of the College, its alumni and the nation.
- Other Dartmouth classes shared in the project by contributing funds and by sharing expertise necessary for the publishing of the book.

Fast approaching their 70th reunion, these alums have had to redefine but not retire from class activities. This book is a legacy to Dartmouth and a unifying force for the class.
