NATIONAL GEOGRAPHIC | LINDBLAD EXPEDITIONS

Oct. 30–Nov. 6, 2027 | Aboard the National Geographic Gemini

SPECIAL OFFER: 5% GROUP SAVINGS

Dear Alumni, Family, and Friends of Dartmouth,

The collection of islands known as the Galápagos is—in the words of Charles Darwin—"a little world within itself." Here, prehistoric-looking marine iguanas bask on stark volcanic landscapes. Barking sea lions loll about on serene white beaches and magnificent frigatebirds nest in the silvery palo santo trees. Finches flit between tree branches and schools of golden rays swim among the intricate roots of mangrove stands.

We invite you to discover the iconic creatures and habitats of Galápagos for yourself on an incredible voyage aboard National Geographic Gemini. Sailing year round with a maximum of 48 guests, National Geographic Gemini offers guests the largest suites in the Galápagos. Equipped with kayaks, stand-up paddleboards, a fleet of Zodiacs and a custom-designed glass-bottom boat, she is purpose-built to bring you unforgettable encounters. Paddle beside gliding sea turtles, snorkel with curious sea lions and hike among colonies of nesting seabirds. There will also be plenty of chances to spot marine life—like leaping dolphins and diving bluefooted boobies—from the ship's expansive decks.

Our tour operator, Lindblad Expeditions, has spent decades exploring Galápagos and is well known for the exceptional travel experiences they offer in the archipelago. Their naturalists have a deep knowledge of island species and habitats that allows them to make the most of nature's opportunities—which means you will enjoy adventure-filled days and amazing wildlife sightings. Many are also Galapagueños, and they provide an authentic connection to the region's culture.

I hope you will be able to join us October 30–November 6, 2027. To make your reservation, please email groups@expeditions.com or call 833-985-1261.

Warm Regards from Hanover,

Professor Jay Hull holds an endowed chair as The Dartmouth Professor of Psychological and Brain Sciences. He is a past Department Chair and Associate Dean of Faculty for the Social Sciences. He is a Fellow of the Society of Experimental Social Psychologists and has published in the flagship journals of his field in each of five decades of his career focusing on the topics of self-consciousness and self-regulation, social support and depression, adolescent deviant behavior, and advanced statistical methods. A Dartmouth Professor for over forty years, he has taught graduate and undergraduate courses on social psychology, health psychology, research methodology, and data analysis.

On previous trips with Dartmouth Alumni Travel to East and Southern Africa, he developed a series of well-received lectures on the social behavior African mammals. These lectures focused on the cognitive and emotional processes that underlie such behavior, as well as recent research consistent with the theory that the brains of these animals have developed in specific ways to navigate the complexity of their social environments. For this trip, he will extend this analysis to consider the links between social behavior, cognition, and brain development of a variety of other animals including cetaceans (specifically, dolphins and whales), birds, and humans.
