Opening song – Dartmouth, Our Dartmouth

Dartmouth, our Dartmouth!

Thy name is ever dear,

they mem'ries to us near,

Wher-e'er we be.

Thou- mother wise and true,

Thou- old yet ever new,

They name does aye renew,

Our love to thee.

Dartmouth, our Dartmouth!

Thine is a noble site,

Hills, wood, and stream unite,

To grace the scene.

Men come with autumn's glow,

Men work thro' winter's snow,

Men proud, like spring, to show,

Thy color green.

Dartmouth, our Dartmouth!

Loyal we are to thee,

Thy honors ours shall be,

Ours to maintain.

Dartmouth shall be our pride,

Dartmouth, New Hampshire's bride,

Dearer than all beside,

Mother of men.

Call to Worship (Responsive Reading, based on Isaiah 40)

As we gather to memorialize our dear classmates,

We recall the words of the Prophet Isaiah:

Comfort ye, comfort ye, my people, says your God

For a voice cries out in the wilderness,

"Prepare the way of the Lord. Make straight in the desert a highway for our God."

Every valley shall be lifted up,

And every mountain and hill shall be made low;

The uneven ground shall become level,

And the rough places a plain.

John Sloan Dickey, Convocation Address, September 22, 1954

"And now men of Dartmouth, as I have said on this occasion before, as members of the College you have three different but closely intertwined roles to play:

First, you are citizens of a community and are expected to act as such.

Second, you are the stuff of an institution and what you are it will be.

Thirdly, your business here is learning and that is up to you.

We'll be with you all the way. Good Luck!"

Memorial presentation part I

Singing of Twilight Song

Softly now the early twilight
Thro' the trees is stealing down,
And the evening hush is falling
O're the college and the town.
Come and gather on the campus,
Make the gray old maples ring
With the songs of Alma Mater,
With the songs we love to sing.

Brothers, while the shadows deepen,
While we stand here heart to heart,
Let us promise one another
In the silence ere we part.
We will make our lives successful,
We will keep our hands from shame
For the sake of dear old Dartmouth,
And the honor of her name.

For the dear old college home, boys,
For the happy, happy days:
For our glorious Alma Mater,
Shake the campus with her praise.

Theodore M. Hesburgh, CSC, Commencement, June 8, 1958

"My prayer is that your personal pattern of belief will do justice to all that you are and all that you might yet be ...that your pattern will reflect the values that make life meaningful and worthwhile, that your pattern will be adequate to meet effectively, positively, and courageously the total human situation today, and that, ultimately, by faithfully following your pattern of belief, each of you will somehow, God willing and helping, make incarnate in your life tomorrow the high aspirations, the true dedications, the personal commitments, the symphony of all good things that make the angels rejoice and the earth fruitful."

Memorial presentation part II

Singing of Dartmouth Undying (please stand)

Dartmouth! There is no music for our singing,
No words to bear the burden of our praise;
Yet how can we be silent and remember
the splendor and the fullness of her days?
Who can forget her soft September sunsets?
Who can forget those hours that passed like dreams—
The long cool shadows floating on the campus,
The drifting beauty where the twilight streams?

Who can forget her sharp and misty mornings?
The clanging bells, the crunch of feet on snow?
Her sparkling noons, the crowding into Commons,
The long white afternoons, the twilight glow?
See! By the light of many thousand sunsets,
Dartmouth Undying like a vision starts:
Dartmouth, the gleaming, dreaming walls of Dartmouth
Miraculously builded in our hearts.

Theodore M. Hesburgh, reflections on our 25th, 1983

“For all the good that all of you have managed to do in the past 25 years, in so many different ways, I give great and good thanks. There is still that 50th reunion to think about. Upward and onward and Godspeed.”

Memorial presentation, part III

Theodore M. Hesburgh, reflections on that 50th, 2008.

“I believe that today our dominant feeling must be thanksgiving for the graces we have received from the Good Lord, from the wonderful friendships that have fashioned our lives and enriched them, for the inspiration that has turned our lives to a higher and better meaning ... for all that Dartmouth has meant to each of us as the years have marched by since that wonderful rainy day 50 years ago when we received our degrees and marched forth with pride.”

Singing of “Men of Dartmouth”

Men of Dartmouth, give a rouse
For the college on the hill!
For the lone pine above her
And the loyal sons who love her---
Give a rouse, give a rouse, with a will
For the sons of old Dartmouth,
The sturdy sons of Dartmouth--
Though 'round the girdled earth they roam
Her spell on them remains;
They have the still North in their hearts,
The hill-winds in their veins,
And the granite of New Hampshire
In their muscles and their brains.

Men of Dartmouth, set a watch
Lest the old traditions fail!
Stand as brother stands by brother!
Dare a deed for the old mother!
Greet the world, from the hills, with a hail!
For the sons of old Dartmouth
The loyal sons of Dartmouth—
Around the world they keep for her
Their old chivalric faith:
They have the still North in their soul,
The hill-winds in their breath;
And the granite of New Hampshire
Is made part of them till death.

Men of Dartmouth cast a line
To our friends beyond the veil,
To the faces we once supped with,
To the shoulders we lined up with;
Cast a line from the heart with a will,
To our friends from old Dartmouth,
Immortal sons of Dartmouth;
Whatever universe they roam, their memory remains;
We share the still North in our souls,
The hill-winds in our brains,
And the granite of New Hampshire
Will bring us to to them again;
And the granite of New Hampshire
Will bring us to them again.
